Bailey's Café Announces Crowd-Funding Campaign for New Home in Brooklyn

Brooklyn, New York, March 5, 2015 – Bailey's Café announced today that has launched a $30,000 campaign on the crowd-funding platform, Indiegogo, the proceeds of which will go towards renovating their new home in the Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood of Brooklyn, NY.

Located at 324 Malcolm X Boulevard and conveniently accessible from the A/C trains to Utica and a number of buses, Bailey's new home will offer its inter-generational participants 1,800 sq. ft. of space to collaborate, story-share, create opportunities for economic development, social entrepreneurship, community engagement and artistic expression.

“After years of searching for a place to call home, we had actually given up,” says Stefanie Siegel, Bailey's Café's Executive Director and Founder, “but suddenly this space became available and it was too good to pass up. I am excited to explore all the new opportunities having our own space will offer.”

To support Bailey's Café's new home and all of the lives that it will impact, please visit their Indiegogo campaign: <https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/bailey-s-gets-a-home/x/9948867>

About Bailey's Café

Bailey's Café is a Brooklyn-based, 501(c)(3) charitable organization dedicated to providing creative and collaborative environments to communities across New York City. We create these types of environments through partnerships with local leaders and inter-generational volunteers, all focused on community-building through service and the arts.
